Chapter 1 by Weirdfriendlessgirl

You know that girl who always sits by herself. The one who almost never talks. Who's best friend is a book and I'm talking real paper paged book not one on an IPad. The one who stays at home on Friday nights. 1. Because she prefers music and writing to socializing. 2. Because no one invited her to anything. The girl other girls make fun of and well guys just don't notice. That girl who could tell you every character from Pride and Prejudice but doesn't know any dance moves or popular singers. Yeah that's me. I'm not lucky enough to be invisible I'm just weird

Chapter 2 by Weirdfriendlessgirl

Now some people might say Oh you're not weird you're just a dork. Well I haven't even gotten to the weird yet. I'm the girl who can literally understand dogs. Yes I talk to dogs and they talk back. I can hear peoples thoughts. I can make people disappear. I just can't do it to myself unfortunately. That's the reason I never talk to anyone because I just might accidentally do it to them. I sit quietly behind books and listen to those words. She's weird.....Yeah I know

Chapter 3 by R

There's an advantage to not getting caught up in all of the people stuff at my school. Not only do I get to avoid all the fights and all the drama, but I also see things so much more clearly than others. I notice stuff. The little details.

I noticed the girl who kept disappearing.

At first. I thought I was the one who was doing it. That I had made this girl vanish from existence. It wouldn't be the first time. Anyone who suffered that fate was forgotten by all but me. I sketched their faces down. I drew them. I drew them, but none of them deserved to be forgotten.

This girl, however, came back.

I started to notice her. She was like me, quiet, not saying much, sitting alone at lunch, and sometimes she'd just change. There'd be an instant and then she was over somewhere else, or in just the wrong position, or gone entirely.

Okay, maybe not the best idea, but it was the only one I had: I removed the careful block I held around my mind and looked in to her thoughts.

Chapter 4 by m a r i e

As I tried to see her inner core (her thoughts) I felt a pain, right in the middle of my forehead, my mind's eye. Whenever I looked through it, everything became clear, the smells, the sounds, the tastes... and whenever I looked through it, a vision of sort became who I was, the Hunter. Unfortunately, this girl was the Acher.

I glanced down at my side and saw an arrow inbedded in it. I glanced up and saw the archer staring me down with her bow drawn.

"Who are you?"

"Someone like you."

"But I am a archer, I see no bow in your hands."

I snapped my fingers and a bow materialized into my hands "Now I do."

"I see, well then, I am Archer"

"I can see that, I guestured to her bow with mine"

"But who are you?"

"I am the Hunter"

Chapter 5 by caramel girl interrupted

The Archers human name was Caramel. She had long, dark hair that reached just above her bum and forest green eyes. She was the kind of pretty that guys noticed. If she didn't like me, she hid to keep out of harms way.

"Are there more of us here?" I asked her, she looked around before answering in a low voice.

"Yes, 3 more of us"

"Who?" I asked, you could tell by my voice I was anxious to know.

"Braydon, Clara and Theo" she named them, Clara and Theo were understandable as they were quiet and "weird" like Christine and myself, but Braydon came as a surprise to me. Braydon is the captain of the football team and the most popular guy in school, not to mention the hottest guy in school too.
